Top 10 Muscle Cars...

(by Barrett Jackson - 2010)

1. 1964 Shelby Cobra Roadster - $478,500

A very authentic and Wimbledon White with blue stripes and original alloy body of a 289 Cobra.

2. 1963 Shelby Cobra Roadster - $401,500

3. 2011 Ford Mustang GT Glass Roof Coupe Pace Car - $300,000

4. 1970 Plymouth Superbird 426 Hemi - $286,000

This Superbird was rotisserie restored with great attention to detail and correctness of every nut and bolt and is highly documented with its original

Broadcast Sheet and original owners manual. A rare low-production HEMI car with matching numbers, historic documentation and verification by Govier.

5. 2008 Ford Mustang Race Car FR500S $275,000

6. 1970 Ford Boss Mustang 429 $275,000

7. 1966 Ford Mustang Shelby 350 $247,500

The very first '66 production Shelby. It is the first of the 252 extremely desirable Shelby "carryover" cars built. Its number one production status and its racing pedigree make this a historically significant Shelby.

Dangerous Car Temps...

As the outdoor temperature continues to rise, the interior temperature of your car can become deadly. Even an outside temperature of 70° F can produce a life threatening interior temperature. During this time of year, it is especially important to take extra precautions when traveling with children and family pets. Each year, an average of 37 children die from hyperthermia after being left inside a hot car. Approximately half of these tragedies from year to year are caused by child caregivers.

On a 95° F day a car's interior can heat up to 135° F within an hour, and reach temperatures of 180° F or more in direct sunlight. The color of your car's interior also has a direct affect on the interior temperature of your car. With an outside temperature of 80° F, inside car temperatures can reach the following levels for the specified color interior:

- White: 135° F
- Red: 154° F
- Blue/Green: 165° F
- Black: 192° F

It is also very important to check the temperature of a car seat before buckling a child in a car. Skin that touches a car seat surface over 150° F can be severely burned within a second.
