Amazon Deliveries to Your Car?

While the service has been available for some brand of cars and for certain areas, Ford has now partnered with Amazon to allow deliveries directly to your car when you are not home.

There are certain limitations to the service like size and weight of packages, and location/accessibility of the vehicle, but this also helps to reduce the level of theft that occurs from packages left outside by "porch pirates" trolling neighborhoods for an endless supply of treasure.

This service would be offered only to those holding a prime account and owning a 2017 or later Ford equipped with the connectivity service, and other select Ford models. Not all are convinced that
